

Screw 'em tight Pete

Screw 'em tight Pete
Was a flat-pack man
Cheap and easy to pull apart
But everyone swore by him

“In 1945 Germany invaded Poland”
He declared
“Now the'r invading us
W't cheap labour.”

His mate knew one -
A Polish electrician
What's your hourly?
He asked accusingly

The wry Pole
Playing to the stereotype
Declared (in perfect English)
“One pound twenty”

“N'wunder I can't get no work,”
Shouted Pete, waving his hammer in the air.
He's definitely got a screw loose
Muttered the landlord, reaching for the phone.
